Course Description

This course is designed to allow students to develop the skills acquired previously in spoken and written standard Arabic, with an addition of some examples of other levels (local dialect : Egyptian, Middle-eastern, North-African...; classical Arabic; press Arabic...).

The material used in class, besides the textbook, is made of varied types of genuine documents (cards, newspapers, maps, etc.).

Course Learning Outcomes

Practice current conversations on learning and everyday life topics
Deal with details of Arabic grammar (both syntax and morphology / derivation system)
Produce detailed narrated or argumentative texts which re-use the grammar and lexicon material seen during sessions

General Education

- You will be able to learn a new alphabetical system along with a new language and build your own comparisons with your mother tongue
- You will be able to interact with Arabic speakers (more than 300 millions people) in writing, reading, and speaking
- You will be able to develop a better understanding of a culture that is massively ignored in the Academic field so you can develop appreciated and rare skills at the University

Course Outline

Remark: The material used in class, besides the recommended textbook, is based upon oral registered dialogs, short texts and varied types of genuine documents (cards, newspapers, maps, etc.) that would be available through Teams sessions, by email and on Blackboard. Also, the course will very much often practice the internet research in Arabic so you can get a better idea of the contemporary Arab world and the way topics are discussed in social or institutional medias, which will help you in acquiring more and more language material.

Please be advised that the schedule is subject to change and will be revisited as the course progresses.

Attendance Policy

Students studying at The American University of Paris are expected to attend ALL scheduled classes, and in case of absence, should contact their professors to explain the situation. It is the student's responsibility to be aware of any specific attendance policy that a faculty member might have set in the course syllabus. The French Department, for example, has its own attendance policy, and students are responsible for compliance. Academic Affairs will excuse an absence for students' participation in study trips related to their courses.

Covid-19 temporary amendments

Students studying at The American University of Paris are STILL EXPECTED TO ATTEND ALL scheduled classes. Due to the Covid-19 pandemic, students will have the option of attending classes remotely when special circumstances apply. For example when students are placed under quarantine by the French authorities or by their doctor, or when students present symptoms of Covid-19 and are directed, by their doctor or the AUP Health Office, to remain home. It is still the student's responsibility to be aware of any specific attendance policy that their professor might have set in the course syllabus. In particular, Students attending remotely from distant Time Zones should check with their professors about the specific attendance policy for remote learners.

Attendance at all exams is mandatory.

IN ALL CASES OF MISSED COURSE MEETINGS, THE RESPONSIBILITY FOR COMMUNICATION WITH THE PROFESSOR, AND FOR ARRANGING TO MAKE UP MISSED WORK, RESTS SOLELY WITH THE STUDENT.

Whether an absence is excused or not is ALWAYS up to the discretion of the professor or the department. Unexcused absences can result in a low or failing participation grade. In the case of excessive absences, it is up to the professor or the department to decide if the student will receive an “F” for the course. An instructor may recommend that a student withdraw, if absences have made it impossible to continue in the course at a satisfactory level.

Students must be mindful of this policy when making their travel arrangements, and especially during the Drop/Add and Exam Periods.
