Course Description

COURSE DESCRIPTION:

With the news of the Harvey Weinstein scandal in October 2017, a new term entered the public stage: “toxic masculinity:” the narrow, bullying form of manhood that glorifies sexual conquest, violence, and the subjugation of others. The subsequent #MeToo debate for a long time appeared as a turning point in discussions of gender dynamics. Yet, ‘male prototypes’ continue to exercise power - think of for example Brett Kavanaugh’s confirmation hearing for the Supreme Court. The questions remain: How have conceptions of masculinity developed historically? How are they shaped culturally? This course tackles ‘masculinities’, commencing with historical and cultural contextualizations of classical ‘manhood’ before moving toward the pressing contemporary urgency to address the current, and highly mediated, ‘crisis in masculinity’. From #lockerroom talk to “mansplaining”, from “bread-winners” to patriarchal pants-wearers, from ‘silent types’ to machos, metrosexuals, tomboys and butches, we will interrogate the social forms and cultural practices, the common vernaculars and the political economic frameworks and gendered sexualities that have stacked up to form ‘straight’ ‘queer’ and ‘alternative’ gender performances, giving special attention to what sociologist Raewyn Connell refers to as dialogue with such theorists as: Michael Kimmel, Raewyn Connell, Jack Halberstam, James W. Messerschmidt and Michael A. Messner and Chandrima Chakraborty.

Attendance Policy

ATTENDANCE POLICY:

Students studying at The American University of Paris are expected to attend ALL scheduled classes, and in case of absence, should contact their professors to explain the situation. It is the student's responsibility to be aware of any specific attendance policy that a faculty member might have set in the course syllabus. The French Department, for example, has its own attendance policy, and students are responsible for compliance. Academic Affairs will excuse an absence for students' participation in study trips related to their courses.

Covid-19 temporary amendments:

NB *this class will be taught remotely on TEAMS

Students studying at The American University of Paris are STILL EXPECTED TO ATTEND ALL scheduled classes. Due to the Covid-19 pandemic, students will have the option of attending classes remotely when special circumstances apply. For example when students are placed under quarantine by the French authorities or by their doctor, or when students present symptoms of Covid-19 and are directed, by their doctor or the AUP Health Office, to remain home. It is still the student's responsibility to be aware of any specific attendance policy that their professor might have set in the course syllabus. In particular, Students attending remotely from distant Time Zones should check with their professors about the specific attendance policy for remote learners.

Attendance at all exams is mandatory.

In all cases of missed course meetings, the responsibility for communication with the professor, and for arranging to make up missed work, rests solely with the student.

Whether an absence is excused or not is ALWAYS up to the discretion of the professor or the department. Unexcused absences can result in a low or failing participation grade. In the case of excessive absences, it is up to the professor or the department to decide if the student will receive an "F" for the course. An instructor may also recommend that a student withdraw, if absences have made it impossible to continue in the course at a satisfactory level.

Students must be mindful of this policy when making their travel arrangements, and especially during the Drop/Add and Exam Periods.
