Course Description

COURSE DESCRIPTION:

Some of the best screenwriting (and production) today is happening on television or online. This course will train you to write screenplays (from formatting to dialogue, character development, visualizing action and story structure) and focus that writing around creating our own 'show'. Working in the series structure, we will work as a 'writing room' to analyze best practices in series screenwriting and then create our own series (shorter form but along the same model), developing the series bible, arc and character outlines together, then each student will write their own episode. In doing the work of this class together and individually you will develop a clearer written voice on the page, and richer collaboration skills as we all work to strengthen our 'show'. You will finish the semester with a stronger sense of your own dramatic voice, a better understanding of three-act structure, screenwriting as a visual language. We will take advantage of Paris and experiential immersion as part of this course.

Course Learning Outcomes

Aesthetic Inquiry and Creative Expression: Students will engage with artistic or creative objects (e.g., visual art, theatrical works, film) in different media and from a range of cultural traditions. (CCI LO2)

Exploring and Engaging Difference: Students will think critically about cultural and social difference; they will identify and understand power structures that determine hierarchies and inequalities that can relate to race, ethnicity, gender, nationhood, religion, or class. (CCI LO3)

Create a series 'bible and assess and develop narrative arcs over multiple episodes.

Demonstrate knowledge and mastery of screenwriting form (for short form and feature).

Write expressive screenplays with correct and effective use of screenwriting craft.

Work creatively with other students (in large groups and small) to develop character, conflict, plot, theme, setting, dialogue, subtext, style, tone, genre, scene, sequence, act development, visual storytelling and other elements of the well-crafted screenplay.

Attendance Policy

Because the course includes collaborative work, it is expected that all students will attend all classes. Each unexcused absence will lower your course grade by 1/4 grade.

Absence will impact understanding and impact your grade. Students studying at The American University of Paris are expected to attend ALL scheduled classes, and in case of absence, should contact their professors to explain the situation and to contact other class members to get course work. Only illness is accepted as a permitted absence. It is the student's responsibility to be aware of any specific attendance policy that a faculty member might have set in the course syllabus. Academic Affairs will excuse an absence for students' participation in study trips related to their courses. The Film Department follows the policy that three absences constitute failure in the course. In this course, each unexcused absence will decrease your grade as above. Attendance at all exams is mandatory. In all cases of missed course meetings, the responsibility for communication with the professor, and for arranging to make up missed work, rests solely with the student.

Whether an absence is excused or not is ALWAYS up to the discretion of the professor or the department. Unexcused absences can result in a low or failing participation grade. In the case of excessive absences, it is up to the professor or the department to decide if the student will receive an "F" for the course. An instructor may recommend that a student withdraw if absences have made it impossible to continue in the course at a satisfactory level. Students must be mindful of this policy when making their travel arrangements, and especially during the Drop/Add and Exam Periods.

STUDENT LEARNING GOALS:

- Write expressive screenplays with correct and effective use of screenwriting craft.
- Create a series 'bible and assess and develop narrative arcs over multiple episodes.

METHODS

Class time will be divided into lecture, in-class and outside of class writing exercises and story pitches, script writing, revising and work-shopping.

CLASS CONDUCT RULES

- We'll treat our class as a true writer's room, modeling the class on the way a writer's room really works. Just like in a professional writer's room, you must show up on time and prepared. Lateness, cell phone use, texting etc. will not be tolerated and will lower your participation score.
- Because it is a collaborative course, each unexcused absence will lower your course grade by 1/4 grade.

- Because of the cumulative nature of the workshop, late work will not be accepted. You must bring in what you have each week in the state that it is in. Your weekly assignments count as part of the in the $\frac{1}{4}$ of points of the class.

Assignments and Daily Writing

A screenwriter practices their craft by writing – you will be expected to feast on scripts and series and to work on your own writing exercises several days each week. Sometimes I will ask for paper copies in class – other times I will ask for PDFs to be uploaded to class folders.

Materials Needed

You will need a notebook to write in, something to write with, a folder for scripts and hand-outs, printed copies or equivalent of film scripts, index cards and colored pencils (these last two are not needed until later in the semester). You will need to download and use a Screenwriting program (like Celtx or Final Draft but always proofread for format) to write your screenplays. Both can be downloaded for free. Bring all your screenwriting to the class each week.

OFFICE HOURS

Take advantage of office hours at least once to vet individual scene and structural progress or ask questions that need more clarification.

This syllabus may change to suit class needs. Please seek the current syllabus on Blackboard.*
